Your county educational service agency is committed to providing a variety of services, from professional development to technical support. For over 50 years, Washtenaw ISD has collaborated with local districts to bring innovation and educational excellence to the classroom.

Maintaining communication throughout the county is accomplished through numerous work groups that include: superintendents, board members, business directors, human resource managers, special education directors, principals, curriculum directors, technology directors, maintenance/operations directors, educational network groups, early childhood staff, and the School-Justice Partnership. Positive educational outcomes and cost-savings are realized by working efficiently and effectively together.

This at-a-glance report is designed to provide a snapshot of the services and savings local constituent districts realize through cooperative networking.
