Transition Tip #4

Hello all and Happy Tuesday,

As you know choosing the right transition tools to assess students is crucial, so I want to make sure that I am equipping you with the tools to utilize in your teacher toolboxes. As a special education provider, and team member for your students with IEPs you know your student, and depending on your students' needs and disability the tools (surveys, inventories, and assessments) will vary from student to student. It is important that you have the necessary options available to you to ensure that we as a county provide the best postsecondary transition options for our students here in Washtenaw County.

We have begun assembling a Transition Services Resource Page on our website at WISD Website. Electronic and hard copy resources are available at WISD Transition Assessment, Inventories, and Surveys Website. As we continue to build this resource library- we also wanted to share the following website which is a great resource with a robust database of assessments. We have obtained permission from Dr. Lisa Russo and Jacki Lyster from Pennsylvania Training and Technical Assistance Network (PaTTAN) to share this website: Pennsylvania Training and Technical Assistance Network. This website offers tools, guides, and charts.

Disclaimer: Everything on this website may not be applicable to our state and or/county guidelines/procedures. As an educator you are knowledgeable in knowing what tools are useful and applicable to our students in Washtenaw County and more specifically to your students on your caseload.
