Tuesday's Transition Tip

Transition Assessment Library

In today's Tuesday tip we will spotlight the new online "Transition Assessment Library" that is now live on the Washtenaw ISD website.

The Transition Assessment Library is a systematic tool created to assist teachers with post-secondary planning. Developed by the WISD Transition Coordinator, it categorizes age appropriate assessments based on three main variables; the domain topic area you are assessing (education/training, employment, and independent living), school age level of the student (middle school, high school, and post-high school), and disability.

Assessments included in the library have been either authentically created assessments in the form of downloadable files, are available to take online, or those of which will be offered for checkout through the WISD Transition Coordinator.

New assessments will be added and categorized when they come up as well as any of your feedback is encouraged and greatly appreciate. Click the link below:
